MISSOULA--

The University of Montana's Adams Fieldhouse was the site of three basketball attendance records this season.

100,681 fans saw 13 Montana home games in 1977-78, the first time the University has surpassed the 100,000 plateau.

An average of 7,745 fans saw each of those 13 games, breaking last year's high of 7,065 per game.

Also, 9,350 people turned out for the Idaho State game and the Boise State game. That surpasses the old standard of 9,338, set when Montana hosted Montana State, Jan. 21, 1978. The figure is a school and Big Sky Conference record for a league game.
